

Pumpkin-colored streamers and Items on receipt November 1, 2007

On approximately Sept. 17, 2007, Kinross Print Acquisitions began adding items on receipt for some materials. These items will be given the 'in-process' status. Books (or other materials) that have item records added in Acquisitions should have a narrow pumpkin-colored streamer in them.

Background: in order to automate statistics-gathering, and to aid in tracking materials, Acquisitions is hoping to add items to records upon receipt for all, or almost all, materials.

Implications for all cataloging staff:

- (1) Do not remove the pumpkin-colored streamer. The streamer must stay with the material through cataloging and marking-- the presence of the streamer will alert access services staff to the need to remove the "in-process" status from the item.
- (2) If you encounter any problems with these pumpkin-streamer items, please bring them to Sara (if the item is a monograph) or Valerie (if the item is a serial).

Implications for monograph and copy-catalogers:

- (3) If you are cataloging a book (or other material) with a pumpkin-colored streamer, you do not have to put the barcode of that book in the 049 of the OCLC record when you catalog it. The barcode is already in the database. However, it will not cause any problems if you input the barcode.
- (4) Important If you change the location in the holdings record, either directly or using the 049 $o old loc [new loc] method, for one of these pumpkin-streamer items, you must also change the "Perm. Loc" location in the item record(s) attached to the holdings record.
